All of them are .jpg files at or under 500 pixels length on my Desktop side of things (dunno if that has any impact), but it's kind of random which cover files are imported into my device's SD card and which ones aren't. Any help would be welcome.PS: On another note, I really hope for this feature to be coming soon. I've been using Calibre to organize/manage/import my stuff that includes both PDF and EPUB files, and it'd be nice to specify different folders for the different formats when importing onto my Android device (so I can point my 2 different readers into the corresponding locations).Or I suppose another way is to ask the makers of Aldiko for some kind of preliminary PDF support for organization.Quote BackdraftThe problem is that certain items in my EPUB collection do not have their cover image files imported into my Android device, which means that in Aldiko there are no covers displayed for those items. Any help would be welcome.I'm guessing the ePubs that don't have covers have been converted to ePub using calibre since April? It is possible that Aldiko doesn't support SVG images. Calibre uses these images for covers whenever a book is converted to epub. You can have calibre use JPG images by going to the epub output profile and checking the box that says No SVG cover (see attached). This will force calibre to use a .jpg as the cover instead. I think that inserting this new JPG cover will require an epub to epub conversion.If Aldiko creates the thumbnails from the book cover this could fix your problem. No, I use Aldiko, and I don't have the 'No SVG cover' option enabled. I'm pretty sure Aldiko supports svg just fine. I'm not sure why it's not showing the covers. I've never had that problem with it.I don't use the 'Send to Device' option for getting my books there, though. I use the content server. I don't think that should make any difference, though.I wonder if the problem is that the cover is changed in Calibre, but no conversion is run to get it inserted into the epub file? If you change the cover in Calibre it is necessary to run a conversion (even if it is epub->epub) to get the cover inserted into the file.Quote itimpil wonder if the problem is that the cover is changed in Calibre, but no conversion is run to get it inserted into the epub file? If you change the cover in Calibre it is necessary to run a conversion (even if it is epub->epub) to get the cover inserted into the file.I think you hit the nail on the head. Sorry to resurrect an old topic, but does this mean that if I change the cover for a book, I have to convert it (even if it's epub->epub) before it will get rid of the old one?Don't know if that is the only way, but it certainly does the trick.I just ran into the same problem ; I downloaded (using Edit Metadata) the covers & metadata for some books that had the Calibre generated covers (6 standing books) but the downloaded cover.jpg was only put in the book's folder, not in the .epub file.After converting from EPUB to EPUB, they were.Quote Goner! just ran into the same problem ; I downloaded (using Edit Metadata) the covers & metadata for some books that had the Calibre generated covers (6 standing books) but the downloaded cover.jpg was only put in the book's folder, not in the .epub file.Downloading metadata and covers to calibre never updates any ePub. Calibre only updates ePubs under certain conditions. The 1st you already know.Quote GonerAfter converting from EPUB to EPUB, they were.When a ePub is converted to ePub.The other times ePubs with properly inserted covers will be updated is when they are exported from calibre using Send to Device or Save to disk. There have been so many changes that it is possible that other avenues of export update the covers/metadata, possibly sending via email or the content server update this data but I am unsure.Well, with 950+ ebooks, I'm not looking forward to re-converting them all, since I know of no way to check if they have only one cover or not... Undoubtedly, if you buy EPUB e-books via iTunes Store or iBooks Store, you could get EPUB books 100% with covers. However, things could be quite different if you download free EPUB books from some e-book sharing sites or make EPUB books by yourself. Normally, these EPUB books do not have covers. When you display them on e-readers iBooks or Stanza , you cannot distinguish them from one another. In that case, you might need to add special covers for each EPUB book respectively. Actually, it is pretty easy to achieve your goal. Here is the way: add EPUB cover via iTunes. Fix & optimize ID3 tags,covers,song information Perfectly backup/restore iTunes library Transfer between iOS/Android devices directly Transfer audio and video from Device to iTunes and PC Make any photos or video PC to GIF images Delete photos/videos by batch with a single click De-duplicate the repeated contacts Selectively transfer exclusive files Export & Backup contact, text messages, MMS Transfer music, photos without iTunes restrictions No iTunes needed Fully compatible with iOS 11 Free Download Free Download What you need: First, you should get some corresponding book covers, either download from the Internet or make by yourself. Save these book covers on your hard drive. Second, launch iTunes and import your EPUB books which are lack of covers to iTunes Library. Go to "File->Add File to Library" and Navigate to the EPUB books and click "Open". Or you can directly drag and drop EPUB books to iTunes Library. Third, in the "Book" section, you could see these books are all lack of covers, only with book name attached to it. Right-click one of them and select "Get Info" to open the dialogue box related to the EPUB. Click the "Artwork" tab to open the adding artwork dialogue box and click "Add" button on that interface to add the prepared EPUB cover. You've made it! It is cool, right? This is the easiest way I've used to add stylish covers to my EPUB books. It is also workable when you want to replace the old cover with a new one. It could be more meaningful if you could spend time to customize your own e-book covers.
